HOW TO COOK A STEAK : Cooking

http://www.reddit.com/r/Cooking/comments/cu6iu/hit_me_up_with_castiron_skillet_recipes/

Ingredients you need, * Kosher Salt * Pepper * Steak Garlic Butter (optional) * Stick of butter * minced garlic * herb of preference, (chives, parsley, cilantro etc) Get steak that's at least 1 inch in thickness, bring it out to room temperature an hour before you cook. Let it rest the first half, and salt the crap out of it the second half. Make sure you use kosher salt. The osmosis method makes the steak super tender and evenly flavored instead of just the outer part. Don't worry, it's not going to be too salty. When you're ready to cook, rinse the steak and pat SUPER dry.
Pepper it to taste. Turn on the vent, fan and possibly open a window - it is going to get smokey. Turn the heat up on the cast iron to med-high. It's going to take a good 7-8 minutes to raise the temperature of the cast iron to desired heat level. To test the correct temperature, sprinkle some water on the iron, and if the water drops jump around instead of instantly evaporizing, then its ready. I use canola oil because it can take higher heat temps, drizzle some in, and lay the end of the steak closest to you first to avoid hot oil hitting you. Get a timer and set it to 3-4 minutes per side, depending on thickness and how well you like it done. DO NOT TOUCH in between the flips. Doing so you will lose the amazing crust. While you're waiting for the skillet to heat up, cut up your butter into slices or cubes. Mince some garlic and fresh herbs and mash it with the cut up butter. Add a pinch of salt if you like. When the steak is ready, plate it hot side up and scoop some butter on top and get ready for some mighty goodness. Bon Apetit!

grandmotherhood-and-pecan-pie_13.html](http://homesicktexan.blogspot.com/2006/09/grandmotherhood-and-pecan-pie_13.html)

Ingredients: For the crust (makes enough for two): 2 cups of flour 1 tsp salt 1/2 cup oil (she used to use corn, but I believe she uses canola now) 1/4 cup milk For the filling: 3/4 cup sugar 3/4 cup white Karo syrup 3 eggs 1 teaspoon of vanilla extract 2 tablespoons of milk 2 tablespoons of flour 4 tablespoons of butter, melted 1 cup of pecans Method: For the crust: Mix flour and salt. Mix oil and milk. Pour oil and milk into flour and salt and stir until combined into a dough. Can add more milk if dry. Separate into two balls (save one ball for another pie). Roll crust out between two sheets of wax paper, line a buttered pie pan with crust. For the filling: Mix sugar, syrup, eggs and vanilla. Add milk, flour, melted butter. Then add pecans. Pour filling into pie pan lined with unbaked crust. Bake at 350 for a little less than an hour, until set. Makes one pie.

A Poem By Nate Pritts | The Awl

<http://www.theawl.com/2012/01/a-poem-by-nate-pritts>

THIS IS PROBABLY THE END Outside they're yelling about the secret weapon. But I can still judge the season by the unhidden dandelions all over the front yard. Also the tricycles, which is to say that I face the future ludicrous & unafraid. Once I occupied a picnic table for a whole afternoon & people came by, asked if it was okay to sit down. My responses varied with the color of their eyes, which is different than yesterday at the coffee shop where I spent all my energy trying to convince you to sit anywhere else. Not right next to me. Not putting your adult espionage thriller on the table where my drink goes. Outside, they're always yelling about the secret weapon. I folded my old tattersall shirt & put it in a box. The sleeves were fraying & I was embarrassed to part with it. We give up on worn out things when instead we should celebrate & covet their injuries. I shoved sadness deep into my ears to drown out the sizzling of dinner. I spent forty minutes stacking books on the new bookshelf & each volume generated such an impressive floral infused gust, I had to wonder about the previous owner. I had to wonder about the Nate Pritts from fifteen years ago, the one who bought a bottle of his ex-girlfriend's perfume just to have it in case all beauty suddenly ceased. It did. Then it started again

Mixu's Node book

<http://book.mixu.net/>

My ideal book is short, comprehensive and interesting. In order to learn Node, you need to learn how to write code - not how to use a 3rd party library or a set of spells. I will recommend a few libraries, but the focus is on writing code yourself. Whenever I cover an API, I will do what I can to include examples and snippets that I have found useful myself.

<http://joshemerson.co.uk/blog/responsive-process/>

"Often, clients find it hard to grasp the concept of responsive design, indeed it makes my brain hurt some days. Instead of trying to explain the concept of responsive design, it may be more important to talk about sustainable design. Cennydd made the point that sustainability is something that most businesses already concern themselves with. A website which responds to context is far more sustainable than one which offers a non-optimal experience on the majority of devices and where the design only considers desktops and laptops."

Daring Fireball: Markdown Syntax Documentation

<http://daringfireball.net/projects/markdown/syntax>

Markdown is intended to be as easy-to-read and easy-to-write as is feasible. Readability, however, is emphasized above all else. A Markdown-formatted document should be publishable as-is, as plain text, without looking like it's been marked up with tags or formatting instructions.

While Markdown's syntax has been influenced by several existing text-to-HTML filters — including Setext, atx, Textile, reStructuredText, Grutatext, and EtText — the single biggest source of inspiration for Markdown's syntax is the format of plain text email. To this end, Markdown's syntax is comprised entirely of punctuation characters, which punctuation characters have been carefully chosen so as to look like what they mean. E.g., asterisks around a word actually look like emphasis. Markdown lists look like, well, lists. Even blockquotes look like quoted passages of text, assuming you've ever used email.

The latest Working Draft of the CSS3 Image Values and Replaced Content module was released last month, and contains some changes to the gradient syntaxes — for what you'd hope would be the last time. The updated syntaxes are a little more logical, but offer the same flexibility.

MARPAT - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

<http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/MARPAT>

MARPAT (short for MARine PATtern) is a digital camouflage pattern in use with the United States Marine Corps, introduced with the Marine Corps Combat Utility Uniform (MCCUU), which replaced the Camouflage Utility Uniform. The pattern is formed by a number of small rectangular pixels of color. In theory, it is a far more effective camouflage than standard uniform patterns because it mimics the dappled textures and rough boundaries found in natural settings. This is caused by how the human eye interacts with pixelated images. It is also known as the "digital pattern" or "digi-cammies" because of its micropattern (pixels) rather than the old macropattern (big blobs).

From jQuery to JavaScript: A Reference | Nettuts+

<http://net.tutsplus.com/tutorials/javascript-ajax/from-jquery-to-javascript-a-reference/>

Whether we like it or not, more and more developers are being introduced to the world of JavaScript through jQuery first. In many ways, these newcomers are the lucky ones. They have access to a plethora of new JavaScript APIs, which make the process of DOM traversal (something that many folks depend on jQuery for) considerably easier. Unfortunately, they don't know about these APIs! In this article, we'll take a variety of common jQuery tasks, and convert them to both modern and legacy JavaScript.

As of May 26, 2011, 94.5% of all articles in the English Wikipedia lead eventually to the article Philosophy. The rest lead to an article with no wikilinks, links to pages that do not exist, or get stuck in loops.

These are Frank Hurley's famous early colour photographs of Sir Ernest Shackleton's ill-fated 'Endurance' voyage, as part of the British Imperial Trans-Antarctic Expedition, 1914-1917. Hurley was the official photographer on the expedition. Early in 1915, their ship 'Endurance' became inexorably trapped in the Antarctic ice. Hurley managed to salvage the photographic plates by diving into mushy ice-water inside the sinking ship in October 1915.

How To Make Weeknight Crispy Duck Breast | The Awl

<http://www.theawl.com/2012/03/how-to-make-weeknight-crispy-duck-breast>

You really don't need a lot of money, time or even skill to prepare duck at home. If you keep it simple with sides, this dinner can be made in under a half-hour. And duck is delicious too, especially the crispy skin, which is texturally a lot like bacon. It can be enjoyed with a fruit-and-booze glaze, or with just salt and pepper, and both are manageable for weeknight cooking. It's not difficult; if it were I promise you that I would have no idea how to do it.

Most jungle juice mixtures contain large quantities of hard alcohol mixed with a variety of fruit juices. For example, jungle juice may contain Everclear, rum, gin, tequila, vodka, and whiskey, mixed with orange, grapefruit, grape, apple, pineapple, or other juices for flavor and to stretch the quantity of alcohol. In addition, most jungle juice batches contain chunks of various fruits, such as pineapples, watermelons, or grapes. Another common recipe for large batches mixes Everclear and frozen juice concentrate in a large container, such as a garbage can, diluted with tap water to the desired strength.

Air France Flight 447 - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Air_France_Flight_447

While the investigation is still awaiting formal conclusion, preliminary reports of the BEA stated that the aircraft crashed following an aerodynamic stall caused by inconsistent airspeed sensor readings, the disengagement of the autopilot, and the pilot making nose-up inputs despite stall warnings, causing a fatal loss of airspeed and a sharp descent. Additionally, reports indicated that the pilots had not received specific training in "manual airplane handling of approach to stall and stall recovery at high altitude", and that this was not a standard training requirement at the time of the accident.

Boards of Canada - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Boards_of_Canada

Boards of Canada (commonly abbreviated BoC) are a Scottish electronic music duo consisting of brothers Mike Sandison (born June 1, 1970) and Marcus Eoin (born July 21, 1971). They are signed with Warp Records and have released several works on that label with little advertising and few interviews, while also having an elusive and obscure back-catalogue of releases on their self-run Music70 label. They have also recorded four tracks under the alias Hell Interface.

About HTML semantics and front-end architecture – Nicolas Gallagher

<http://nicolasgallagher.com/about-html-semantics-front-end-architecture/>

main points: - use class names that are reusable, can contain a range of content types & that are useful to developers - javascript-specific class, eg "js-login", to reduce chance of breaking interactivity - use "multi-class" patterns to modify slightly different but essentially similar components

Learning Javascript with Object Graphs - How To Node - NodeJS

<http://howtonode.org/object-graphs>

One of the secrets to being a super effective JavaScript developer is to truly understand the semantics of the language. This article will explain the basic elemental parts of JavaScript using easy to follow diagrams.

Learning Javascript with Object Graphs (Part II) - How To Node - NodeJS

<http://howtonode.org/object-graphs-2>

In this article I'll explain three common techniques for creating objects. They are constructor with prototype, pure prototypal, and object factory.

oop, programming, tutorial, howto, learning, javascript

Learning Javascript with Object Graphs (Part III) - How To Node - NodeJS

<http://howtonode.org/object-graphs-3>

Now in Part III we'll get creative and look at Ruby's object model and compare it to how JavaScript works. Also I'll show how to implement some Ruby style classes.

JavaScript is a very flexible language and can support about any object model you want with enough understanding and creativity.

Proxima Nova (2005) is a complete reworking of Proxima Sans (1994). The original six fonts (three weights with italics) have been expanded to 42 full-featured OpenType fonts. Proxima Nova straddles the gap between typefaces like Futura and Akzidenz Grotesk. The result is a hybrid combining humanistic proportions with a somewhat geometric appearance.

Introduction to text manipulation on UNIX-based systems

<http://www.ibm.com/developerworks/aix/library/au-unistdtext/index.html>

This introduction to text manipulation on UNIX platforms provides an overview of some common commands widely available and installed standard on most UNIX-based releases. Many times these standard utilities are ignored in favor of more modern text-processors such as Perl, Python, or Ruby, which are not always installed on a system. An introductory review of these tools helps practitioners who are learning UNIX or Linux or those who may be looking to renew forgotten knowledge.

GZA - a.k.a. Gary Grice, founding member of the Wu-Tang Clan - is known for an omnivorous intellect and complex lyrics that reference, among other things, astronomy, philosophy, and chess, which he has played since childhood. He was in town this week to lecture at the Harvard Black Men's Forum. But first, he wanted to drop some science. Specifically, oceanography. And biology. And quantum physics. So he went on a three-day tour, meeting scientists around Harvard University and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and learning.

<http://www.chillingeffects.org/index.cgi>

Chilling Effects aims to help you understand the protections that the First Amendment and intellectual property laws give to your online activities. We are excited about the new opportunities the Internet offers individuals to express their views, parody politicians, celebrate their favorite movie stars, or criticize businesses. But we've noticed that not everyone feels the same way. Anecdotal evidence suggests that some individuals and corporations are using intellectual property and other laws to silence other online users. Chilling Effects encourages respect for intellectual property law, while frowning on its misuse to "chill" legitimate activity.

Ke-mo sah-bee (/ki:məʊ'sa:bə:/; often spelled kemo sabe or kemosabe) is the term of endearment and catchphrase used by the intrepid and ever-faithful fictional Native American sidekick, Tonto, in the very successful American radio and television program The Lone Ranger. (The phrase is sometimes also used by the Lone Ranger himself.) It is sometimes translated as "rusty scout" or "faithful friend" in Potawatomi.[1][2] Its use has become so widespread it was entered into Webster's New Millennium Dictionary in 2002.

<http://square.github.com/crossfilter/>

Crossfilter is a JavaScript library for exploring large multivariate datasets in the browser. Crossfilter supports extremely fast (<30ms) interaction with coordinated views, even with datasets containing a million or more records; we built it to power analytics for Square Register, allowing merchants to slice and dice their payment history fluidly.

This course teaches experienced developers Ruby and Ruby on Rails. It's designed to be taught by a practicing rubyist and a teaching assistant. Both individuals must have expert understanding of Ruby, Rack and Ruby on Rails. The ideal class size is 12-15 students, each having prior application development track record. The lesson plan is conceived as 12 two-hour lectures with homework given after each of the first 6 courses. Assignments are tracked in Pivotal Tracker. Subsequent 6 lectures alternate class material with coding. The course ends with 8 hours of building a final project for obtaining certification.

Roasted Rainbow Trout with Lemon and Thyme Recipe - Saveur.com

<http://www.saveur.com/article/Recipes/Roasted-Rainbow-Trout-with-Lemon-and-Thyme?cmpid=enews041612&spPodID=020&spMailingID=4499057&spUserID>

INGREDIENTS 1 2-lb. whole rainbow trout or red snapper, scaled, gutted, and cleaned Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste 3 sprigs thyme 2 sprigs flat-leaf parsley $\frac{1}{2}$ lemon, sliced into thin rounds $\frac{1}{4}$ cup extra-virgin olive oil 2 tbsp. fresh lemon juice INSTRUCTIONS 1. Heat oven to 450°. Season the trout cavity with salt and pepper, and stuff it with the thyme, parsley, and lemon slices. Using kitchen twine, tie the trout crosswise with 2 lengths of twine, spacing them 2" apart. Rub the trout with 1 tbsp. oil, and then transfer them to an aluminum foil-lined baking sheet. Bake trout, turning once with a metal spatula, until cooked through and golden brown on the outside, about 15 minutes. 2. Meanwhile, whisk the remaining oil with the juice in a small bowl, and season with salt and pepper. Remove the twine from the trout, and cut away the filets. Transfer the filets to serving plates, and drizzle with sauce before serving.

Tagliatelle with Poppy Seeds and Prosciutto Recipe - Saveur.com

<http://www.saveur.com/article/Recipes/Tagliatelle-With-Poppy-Seeds?cmpid=eneews041612&spPodID=020&spMailingID=4499057&spUserID=>

INGREDIENTS 2 tbsp. unsalted butter 2 tbsp. extra-virgin olive oil 2 large shallots, thinly sliced Kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste 2 tbsp. poppy seeds $\frac{1}{2}$ cup white wine $\frac{1}{2}$ cup buttermilk $\frac{1}{2}$ cup heavy cream 1 lb. tagliatelle or fettucine 2 oz. prosciutto, thinly sliced $\frac{1}{2}$ cup finely grated Parmesan, plus more to garnish 4 scallions, cut into $\frac{1}{2}$ " slices Juice of $\frac{1}{2}$ lemon INSTRUCTIONS Heat butter and oil in a 12" skillet over medium-high heat. Add shallots. Season with salt and pepper, and cook, stirring, until soft, about 2 minutes. Add poppy seeds; cook, stirring, until fragrant and shallots begin to brown lightly, about 3 minutes. Add wine; cook until almost all liquid evaporates, about 5 minutes. Add buttermilk and cream; cook, stirring, until reduced slightly, about 3 minutes. Meanwhile, bring a pot of salted water to a boil; add pasta, and cook until al dente, about 7 minutes. Drain pasta, reserving a little cooking water, and add to sauce in skillet. Add prosciutto, Parmesan, half the scallions, and lemon juice; toss to combine, adding water if necessary to make a smooth sauce. Season with salt and pepper, and transfer to a serving dish; sprinkle with remaining scallions and more Parmesan.

Brownies - How to Cook Everything: The Basics: Mark Bittman

<http://markbittman.com/how-to-cook-everything-the-basics-brownies>

Time: 30 to 40 minutes Makes: 9 to 12 8 tablespoons (1 stick) butter, plus a little more for greasing the pan 3 ounces unsweetened chocolate, roughly chopped 1 cup sugar 2 eggs 1/2 cup all-purpose flour Pinch salt 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract, optional 1. Heat the oven to 350°F. Grease a square baking pan with butter or line it by overlapping 2 pieces of parchment paper or aluminum foil crosswise and grease the lining. 2. Combine the stick of butter and the chocolate in a small saucepan over very low heat, stirring occasionally. (Or microwave them in a large microwave-safe bowl on medium for 10-second intervals, stirring after each.) When the chocolate is just about melted, remove the saucepan from the heat (or bowl from the microwave) and continue to stir until the mixture is smooth. 3. Transfer the mixture to a large bowl (or use the bowl you put in the microwave) and stir in the sugar. Then beat in the eggs, one at a time. Gently stir in the flour, salt, and the vanilla if you're using it. 4. Pour and scrape the mixture into the prepared pan and bake for 20 to 25 minutes, until just barely set in the middle. Cool on a rack until set. If you used parchment, lift it out to remove the brownies. If not, cut them in squares right in the pan. Store, covered, at room temperature, for no more than a day. Tips: If you use parchment paper (or foil) to line the pan, leave an extra inch or two overhanging each end. When the brownies are cool, grab each flap and lift them out of the pan. Err on the side of underbaking: An overcooked brownie is dry and cakey, while an undercooked brownie is gooey and delicious. Variations Nutty Brownies: In Step 3, substitute 1/4 cup finely ground hazelnuts, almonds, walnuts, or pecans (use the food processor or blender to grind them) for 1/4 cup of the flour and add 1 cup lightly toasted, roughly chopped nuts to the batter. Cocoa Brownies: After the brownies cool a bit but are still warm, put 2 tablespoons cocoa in a small strainer and shake it over the pan to dust the tops of the brownies.

<http://mbostock.github.com/d3/>

D3.js is a small, free JavaScript library for manipulating documents based on data. D3 allows you to bind arbitrary data to a Document Object Model (DOM), and then apply data-driven transformations to the document. As a trivial example, you can use D3 to generate a basic HTML table from an array of numbers. Or, use the same data to create an interactive SVG bar chart with smooth transitions and interaction.

A Brief Rant on the Future of Interaction Design

<http://worrydream.com/ABriefRantOnTheFutureOfInteractionDesign/>

So then. What is the Future Of Interaction? The most important thing to realize about the future is that it's a choice. People choose which visions to pursue, people choose which research gets funded, people choose how they will spend their careers. Despite how it appears to the culture at large, technology doesn't just happen. It doesn't emerge spontaneously, like mold on cheese. Revolutionary technology comes out of long research, and research is performed and funded by inspired people. And this is my plea — be inspired by the untapped potential of human capabilities. Don't just extrapolate yesterday's technology and then cram people into it.

Earthworm - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Earthworm#North_America

A total of approximately 182 earthworm taxa in 12 families are reported from America north of Mexico, i.e., USA & Canada, of which 60 (ca. 33%) are exotic/introduced. Only two genera of Lumbricid earthworms are indigenous to North America while introduced genera have spread to areas where earthworms did not formerly exist, especially in the north where forest development relies on a large amount of undecayed leaf matter. When worms decompose that leaf layer, the ecology may shift making the habitat unsurvivable for certain species of trees, ferns and wildflowers. Another possible ecologic impact of greater earthworm numbers: larger earthworms (e.g. the night crawler, Lumbricus terrestris, and the Alabama jumper, Amyntas agrestis) can be eaten by adult salamanders, and when the salamanders do consume the earthworms they are more successful at reproduction. However, those earthworms are too large for juvenile salamanders to consume, which leads to a net loss in salamander population. Currently there is no economically feasible method for controlling invasive earthworms in forests. Earthworms normally spread slowly, but can be quickly introduced by human activities such as construction earthmoving, or by fishermen releasing bait, or by plantings.

Recipes for Health: Stale Bread - The New York Times

http://topics.nytimes.com/top/news/health/series/recipes_for_health/stale_bread/index.html

In Mediterranean societies, a meal without bread is nearly inconceivable. Bread is a staple in my kitchen, too, but like many households we often don't finish a loaf before it becomes hard and stale. That presents an opportunity, not a problem: Mediterranean cooks long ago figured out just how much you can do with stale bread. People who have survived on little never throw out food that can be eaten. As long as it's not moldy, bread that has dried out can be reconstituted in thick vegetable soups, pungent salads and comforting, savory bread puddings. I'm particularly fond of stale bread used with tomatoes — now is a perfect time to take advantage of the last few weeks of this summer's bounty. Choose breads that are made at least partially with whole wheat flour or other whole grains. They'll be higher in fiber and such nutrients as selenium, potassium and magnesium. Be aware that cutting hard bread is a bit dangerous; the knife can slip off the hard surface, and a serrated bread knife makes a nasty cut. If your stale bread is too hard to cut easily, douse it with water first. You can even plunge it into a bowl of water for about 20 to 30 seconds, then lift it out and squeeze gently.

Kayfabe - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Kayfabe>

In professional wrestling, kayfabe (pronounced /'keɪfeɪb/) is the portrayal of events within the industry as "real" or "true". Specifically, the portrayal of professional wrestling, in particular the competition and rivalries between participants, as being genuine or not of a worked nature. Referring to events or interviews as being a "chore" means that the event/interview has been "kayfabeled" or staged, or is part of a wrestling angle while being passed off as legitimate. Kayfabe has also evolved to become a code word of sorts for maintaining this "reality" within the realm of the general public.

Timeline of the far future - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Timeline_of_the_far_future

While predictions of the future can never be absolutely certain, present scientific understanding in various fields has enabled the course of the far future to be plotted if only in the broadest outlines. These fields include astrophysics, which has revealed how planets and stars form, interact and die; particle physics, which has revealed how matter behaves at the smallest scales, and plate tectonics, which shows how continents shift over millennia. All predictions of the future of the Earth, the Solar System and the Universe must account for the second law of thermodynamics, which states that entropy, or a loss of the energy available to do work, must increase over time. Stars must eventually exhaust their supply of hydrogen fuel and burn out; close encounters will gravitationally fling planets from their star systems, and star systems from galaxies. Eventually, matter itself will come under the influence of radioactive decay, as even the most stable materials break apart into subatomic particles. However, as current data suggest that the Universe is flat, and thus will not collapse in on itself after a finite time, the infinite future potentially allows for the occurrence of a number of massively improbable events, such as the formation of a Boltzmann brain. These timelines cover events from roughly eight thousand years from now to the farthest reaches of future time. A number of alternate future events are listed to account for questions still unresolved, such as whether humans survive, whether protons decay or whether the Earth will be destroyed by the Sun's expansion into a red giant.

"Everything" Potato Galette with Lox and Crème Fraîche Recipe - Saveur.com

<http://www.saveur.com/article/recipes/Everything-Potato-Galette-with-Lox-and-Creme-Fraiche>

SERVES 4 INGREDIENTS ½ cup crème fraîche 2 tbsp. minced chives 2 tbsp. capers, drained 2 large russet potatoes 8 tbsp. clarified butter (See how to make clarified butter) 1 tsp. sesame seeds 1 tsp. poppy seeds Kosher salt and freshly cracked black pepper, to taste 4 oz. smoked salmon ¼ small red onion, thinly sliced INSTRUCTIONS 1. Mix crème fraîche, chives, and capers in a small bowl; season with salt and pepper and refrigerate until ready to use. 2. Peel and grate potatoes using the large holes on a cheese grater or cut into matchsticks using a mandoline. Heat 4 tbsp. clarified butter in a 10" nonstick skillet over medium-low heat. Toss potatoes with seeds and salt and pepper; add to pan and stir to coat potatoes with butter. Using a spatula, gently press potatoes into a flat round, molding to fit skillet; cook, shaking skillet occasionally, until edges are golden and crisp, about 10 minutes. 3. Place a plate, turned upside down, over skillet and invert skillet with plate, allowing potato cake to fall onto plate; slide potato cake back into skillet. Pour remaining butter around edges of potato cake and continue cooking until potatoes are crisp on the bottom, about 10 minutes. Transfer to a cutting board and season with salt and pepper. Place smoked salmon and onion evenly over surface and cut into wedges. Place a dollop of the crème fraîche mixture on top of each wedge before serving.

Asparagus Frittata Recipe - Saveur.com

<http://www.saveur.com/article/Recipes/Asparagus-Frittata>

SERVES 10 – 12 Frittatas are typically made on the stove in a skillet, but preparing them in a bundt pan offers a convenient and beautiful alternative. Serve as part of a hearty lunch or Sunday brunch.

1 tsp. butter 2 cups grated white cheddar 1 small bunch chives, coarsely chopped Salt 20 spears asparagus, trimmed 12 eggs, lightly beaten 2 small yellow onions, peeled and chopped 2 small carrots, peeled, trimmed, and finely grated 1 cup self-rising flour 1 cup milk 1/4 tsp. freshly ground black pepper

1. Preheat oven to 375°. Grease a 12-cup bundt pan with butter; set aside. Mix 1/2 cup of the cheese and 1 tsp. of the chives together in a small bowl and set aside. 2. Bring a large pot of salted water to a boil over high heat and cook asparagus until tender, 3–4 minutes. Drain; cool under cold running water, then pat dry. Cut asparagus into 1/4"-thick pieces and transfer to a large bowl. Add eggs, onions, carrots, flour, milk, remaining 1 1/2 cups cheese, 1 tsp. salt, and pepper, and mix well. Pour batter into prepared pan and bake until firm, about 45 minutes. Allow frittata to cool in pan on a wire rack.

3. Preheat broiler. Invert frittata onto a sheet pan. Sprinkle top with cheese and chives, and broil until cheese just melts, 1–2 minutes. Transfer to serving plate.

Spaghetti Carbonara | Life and style | The Guardian

<http://www.guardian.co.uk/lifeandstyle/wordofmouth/2012/may/10/how-to-cook-perfect-spaghetti-carbonara>

Serves 2
 1 tbsp olive oil
 1 garlic clove, sliced
 75g pancetta, cubed
 250g dried spaghetti
 2 eggs and 1 egg yolk
 25g pecorino romano, finely grated
 25g parmesan, finely grated
 Freshly ground black pepper
 Nutmeg, optional.

1. Put two bowls into a low oven to keep warm, or boil a kettle and half fill them with hot water. Heat the oil in a large frying pan on a medium heat, then add the garlic and cook until well coloured, then remove from the pan with a slotted spoon and discard. Add the pancetta and cook until translucent and golden, but not brown around the edges.
2. Meanwhile, cook the spaghetti in plenty of boiling, salted water until al dente. In a bowl, beat together the eggs and the extra yolk and then stir in the pecorino and most of the parmesan, reserving a little for garnish. Grind in plenty of black pepper.
3. Scoop out a small cupful of the pasta cooking water, and then drain the pasta well. Tip it into the frying pan and toss to coat with the pancetta fat.
4. Take the pan off the heat and tip in the egg mixture, tossing the pasta furiously, then, once it's begun to thicken, add a dash of cooking water to loosen the sauce. Toss again, and divide between the warm bowls, finishing off with a grating of nutmeg and a little more parmesan. Eat immediately.

Hot Pepper Spray Recipe | eHow.com

http://www.ehow.com/way_5194858_hot-pepper-spray-recipe.html

Coarsely chop the four garlic cloves, leaving the peel intact. Place them in a blender with the cayenne peppers. Add 2 tbsp. of mineral oil, 2 cups hot water and 3 tsp. of natural liquid soap. Place the lid on the blender and process on high speed for two to three minutes, or until pureed. Allow the hot pepper spray mixture to stand overnight, which will increase the heat and effectiveness of the solution. In the morning, put on a pair of rubber gloves to protect your hands. This mixture can irritate the skin, so be careful while handling. Strain the liquid through a piece of cheesecloth (or nylon pantyhose) into a glass pint-sized canning jar. Secure the lid tightly and store in a cool, dry place for up to 90 days. Using Hot Pepper Spray To use, measure 1/4 cup of the mixture and transfer to a clean spray bottle. Add about 5 cups of water and shake well to combine. Spray directly onto plants as necessary, being careful not to get any of the liquid on your skin. It's a good idea to wear gloves any time you are handling the hot pepper spray. You can make a larger batch to use in a garden sprayer for larger pest problems. Just stick to the formula above of 1/4 cup of solution to every five cups of water.

jQWidont - Suppress typographic widows

<http://davecardwell.co.uk/javascript/jquery/plugins/jquery-widont/> jQWidont is a plugin for the jQuery JavaScript library that replaces the whitespace between the last two words of a given element's contents with a non-breaking space, to prevent typographic widows. It was inspired by Shaun Inman's Widon't plugin for Wordpress. This document describes jQWidont version 0.1. To quote Mr Inman: For those who don't know, in typesetting, a widow is a single word on a line by itself at the end of a paragraph and is considered bad style.

Homemade Cold-Brew Coffee | The Feed

http://www.americastestkitchenfeed.com/recipes/homemade-cold-brew-coffee/#

Makes about 2 cups of coffee concentrate I like to make cold-brew with a medium roast, as I find it tastes more like coffee and less like the roasting process than dark or French roast. Light roasts tend to be too acidic. As with any kind of coffee brewing, it's best to grind the beans yourself just before using them. The ratio of water to coffee is 1:1 by volume and roughly 4:1 by weight, so feel free to scale the recipe to suit your needs. If you don't have a French press you can make the coffee in a pitcher and strain it through a fine-mesh strainer, and finally through a coffee filter, as in step 2. 3½ cups finely ground medium roast coffee (see note) Kosher salt (optional) 1. Stir together coffee and 3½ cups room-temperature water in large French press. Allow raft of ground coffee to form, about 10 minutes, and stir again to incorporate. Cover with plastic wrap and let sit at room temperature for 24 hours (an hour shorter or longer is fine). 2. Using French press plunger, press firmly on grinds to separate them from concentrate. Pour coffee concentrate into coffee filter-lined fine-mesh strainer set over large measuring cup. Let sit until concentrate filters through, up to 30 minutes. (You should have about 2 cups of coffee concentrate; concentrate can be covered and refrigerated for up to 3 days). 3. Combine ½ cup coffee concentrate, ½ cup cold water, and pinch Kosher salt (if using) and pour into glass with ice. Drink.

10 Timeframes | Contents Magazine

<http://contentsmagazine.com/articles/10-timeframes/>

"There is an immense opportunity—maybe it's even a business opportunity—to look at our temporal world and think about calendars and clocks and human behavior, to think about each interaction as a specific unit, to take careful note of how we parcel out moments. Whether a mouse moving across a screen or the progress of a Facebook post through a thousand different servers, the way we value time seems to have altered, as if the earth tilted on its axis, as if the seasons are different and new."

Lancashire Cheese-and-Onion Pie - Recipes - The New York Times

<http://www.nytimes.com/recipes/12499/Lancashire-Cheese-and-Onion-Pie.html>

INGREDIENTS 1 1/2 cups flour, plus more for dusting 6 tablespoons butter, divided, plus more for greasing 4 tablespoons lard 3 tablespoons ice water, plus more as needed 3 medium onions, thinly sliced 1/4 teaspoon ground white pepper 1 cup boiling water 1/2 pound Lancashire cheese, grated (Cheddar or Cantal also work) Milk, to seal and glaze. Salt PREPARATION 1. Combine the flour and a large pinch of salt in a large bowl. Add 4 tablespoons butter and the lard, and use your fingers to gently rub the fat into the flour until it has the texture of coarse bread crumbs. 2. Mix in just enough ice water to bind the mixture, about 3 tablespoons, and lightly knead the dough until well combined and smooth. When you can mold the mixture into a ball, do so. Cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least 30 minutes — or freeze for 10 — to ease rolling. 3. Heat the oven to 350. Add 2 tablespoons butter to a large skillet over low heat. When the butter melts, add the onions, a pinch of salt and the ground white pepper; cook slowly for about 10 minutes, never browning. 4. Turn the heat to medium and slowly pour in the water. Continue to cook, stirring occasionally, until most of the liquid cooks off, about 10 minutes. Remove the onions from the pan and place them on a plate to cool 5. Grease the bottom of a 9-inch pie dish and sprinkle a countertop with flour. Unwrap the dough and divide it into two balls, one twice as big as the other. Put them on the surface and sprinkle the tops with flour. Using light pressure, roll each one from the center outward, adding more flour as needed and turning them over once or twice during the process. When the larger ball is roughly 10 inches in diameter, gently move it into the pie dish and press it firmly into the bottom and sides. Prick it all over with a fork. 6. Layer the onions and cheese on top of the dough in the dish, then carefully cover with the remaining dough — it should be about 8 inches in diameter. Press the edges together, gently but firmly, and brush the top and edges with milk. Use a knife to make 3 small incisions in the top of the crust so steam can escape. 7. Place the pie on a baking sheet and bake until the crust is nicely browned and the insides are bubbly, 45 minutes to an hour. Cool a bit before slicing into wedges and serving. YIELD 4 to 6 servings.

Welcome To The Summer Drinking Season | The Awl

<http://www.theawl.com/2011/05/welcome-to-the-summer-drinking-season>

INGREDIENTS Gin (The Balk Family prefers Tanqueray, but feel free to use your brand of choice. I would avoid Bombay Sapphire, however; the saltiness that makes it so exquisite in a Martini does not play well with the tang of the tonic and bite of the Campari in this drink.) Tonic Campari Ice Lime DIRECTIONS 1. Pour gin and tonic over ice into a highball glass. I have a heavy hand, and tend to pour a ratio of 1:1 when it comes to gin and tonic, but that does not go over well with everyone, and, come to think of it, I have never served this drink without at least one person ending up in tears, which may have something to do with the large amount of gin. Use your best judgment. 2. Add a splash of Campari. How much is a splash? Generations of Balks have debated this very subject with Talmudic levels of interpretation. You will eventually find your own metric, but for now do this: Fill the cap of the Campari bottle to the top, and dump it into the drink. 3. Give it one quick yet gentle stir. 4. Squeeze the lime into the drink and then garnish. Always lime, never lemon. (There is a possibly apocryphal tale about a relative who once attempted to use an orange, only to be drummed out of the family, but the story has never been verified and I have never had the urge to see how such an unorthodox and disturbing idea would play out in practice. You don't mess with perfection.) 5. Sit back, relax and watch your summer go by like every summer before has, borne aloft on the wings of alcohol and its boon of temporary forgetfulness. I mean, yeah, you could probably do the same thing with beer, but this is much much better. Enjoy!

Unlike Bucky Fuller's well-known and well-tested domes where the number of different parts are kept at a minimum, the SPACEPLATES building system takes advantage of contemporary technology to mimic more complex naturally occurring geometries. Because an organic growth principle, these often contain a gradient, and thus many geometrically similar but differently sized parts. This version of the SPACEPLATES greenhouse is based on the sea urchin's geometry, where hexagons of increasing size generate a spherical form. To further remove the SPACEPLATES greenhouse from the well-known spherical domes, the overall form is distorted by the golden ratio, resulting in an elliptical foot print rather than a circular.

Baby hatch - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Baby_hatch

A baby hatch is a place where mothers can bring their babies, usually newborn, and leave them anonymously in a safe place to be found and cared for. This kind of arrangement was common in mediaeval times and in the 18th and 19th centuries, when the device was known as a foundling wheel. Foundling wheels were taken out of use in the late 19th century but a modern form, the baby hatch, began to be introduced again from 1952 and since 2000 has come into use in many countries, notably in Germany where there are around 80 hatches and in Pakistan where there are over 300 today.

Special Report #1: Data Protection — Contents Magazine

<http://contentsmagazine.com/data/>

The Guidelines 1. Treat our data like it matters. Keep it secure and protect our privacy, of course—but also maintain serious backups and respect our choice to delete any information we've contributed. 2. No upload without download. Build in export capabilities from day one. 3. If you close a system, support data rescue. Provide one financial quarter's notice between announcing the shutdown and destroying any user-contributed content, public or private, and offer data export during this period. And beyond that three months? Make user-contributed content available for media-cost purchase for one year after shutdown.

The Butter Steak | Born Hungry

<http://www.bornhungrymag.com/2012/05/butter-steak/#more-477>

Ingredients 12 ounce ribeye 2 tbsp of unsalted butter 2 cloves of garlic, minced salt and pepper to taste a willingness to consume animal flesh Method Warm a large skillet over medium heat. Stand the ribeye up on one of its sides and cook for 2 min, or until lightly browned. Repeat that on the other side. Lay the ribeye flat and cook for 3 more minutes. Flip it and cook for about 2 minutes. Then, remove the steak from the skillet. Add the butter and minced garlic to the pan. Let the butter melt a bit. Add the steak back to the skillet on the least cooked side. Sprinkle it with salt and pepper. Next, baste the steak in the garlic butter continuously for about 2 minutes. Flip it and sprinkle it with more salt and pepper. Baste it for another minute, and then put it on a plate to rest for about five minutes. Eat your juicy ass steak with some greens or steamed veggies.

Warren Ellis » How To See The Future

<http://www.warrenellis.com/?p=14314>

The concept of calling an event Improving Reality is one of those great science fiction ideas. Twenty five years ago, you'd have gone right along with the story that, in 2012, people will come to a tech-centric town to talk about how to improve reality. Being able to locally adjust the brightness of the sky. Why wouldn't you? That's the stuff of the consensus future, right there. The stories we agree upon. Like how in old science fiction stories Venus was always a "green hell" of alien jungle, and Mars was always an exotic red desert crisscrossed by canals.

Mike's Kale Soup :: Cape Cod Today :: Cape Cod News and Information

[http://www.capecodtoday.com/article/2005/03/05/
425-mikes-kale-soup](http://www.capecodtoday.com/article/2005/03/05/425-mikes-kale-soup)

Portuguese kale soup
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 large yellow onion, chopped
6 cloves garlic, minced
1 pound linguiça (Portuguese sausage), sliced into 1/2-inch rounds
1 pound chorizo (Spanish sausage), sliced into 1/2-inch rounds
2 large Yukon Gold potatoes, peeled & diced
2 large Red Bliss potatoes, diced
1/4 cup chopped parsley
1 (14-ounce) can kidney beans, drained & rinsed
4 quarts chicken stock
2 bay leaves
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
1/2 teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
1 pound kale, well washed, stemmed, and torn into bite-size pieces
1 loaf crusty Portuguese bread
Heat the olive oil in a large stockpot over medium heat. Add the sausage, garlic and onion, season with salt and pepper, and cook, stirring, until onions are translucent. Add the parsley and the chicken stock and bring to a boil. Add the bay leaves, thyme and crushed red pepper. Add the potatoes and kale. Simmer until the potatoes are tender, about another 30 minutes. Skim off any fat that rises to the surface. Remove the bay leaves. To serve, pour the soup into individual soup bowls and serve with the bread.

Learnable Programming

<http://worrydream.com/LearnableProgramming/>

A programming system has two parts. The programming "environment" is the part that's installed on the computer. The programming "language" is the part that's installed in the programmer's head. This essay presents a set of design principles for an environment and language suitable for learning. The environment should allow the learner to: read the vocabulary -- what do these words mean? follow the flow -- what happens when? see the state -- what is the computer thinking? create by reacting - - start somewhere, then sculpt create by abstracting -- start concrete, then generalize The language should provide: identity and metaphor -- how can I relate the computer's world to my own? decomposition -- how do I break down my thoughts into mind-sized pieces? recomposition -- how do I glue pieces together? readability -- what do these words mean?

Some advice from Jeff Bezos by Jason Fried of 37signals

<http://37signals.com svn/posts/3289-some-advice-from-jeff-bezos>

He said people who were right a lot of the time were people who often changed their minds. He doesn't think consistency of thought is a particularly positive trait. It's perfectly healthy — encouraged, even — to have an idea tomorrow that contradicted your idea today. He's observed that the smartest people are constantly revising their understanding, reconsidering a problem they thought they'd already solved. They're open to new points of view, new information, new ideas, contradictions, and challenges to their own way of thinking. This doesn't mean you shouldn't have a well formed point of view, but it means you should consider your point of view as temporary.

LukeW | Designing for Sensors

<http://www.lukew.com/ff/entry.asp?828>

The quantity of sensors embedded in Apple's iPhone make it pretty clear we are entering the "sensing" wave of technology: - Location sensor: precise location coordinates from GPS - User orientation sensor: directional heading from a digital compass - Touch sensors: Multi-touch input from one or more simultaneous gestures - Light/dark sensor: Ambient light detection - Device orientation & motion sensor: from built-in accelerometer - Proximity sensor: device closeness to other objects or people - Audio sensor: input from a microphone - Image & video sensors: capture/input from a camera (all kinds of signals can be found in real-time visual information) - Device sensor: through Bluetooth - Audio broadcast sensor: FM transmitter (rumored on iPhone) Soon, instead of designing for computing (productivity and data management) or communication (email, social networks), we'll be designing for sensors.

Namespacing in JavaScript | JavaScript, JavaScript...

<https://javascriptweblog.wordpress.com/2010/12/07/namespacing-in-javascript/>

3. The Module Pattern I find myself using the module pattern more often these days. The logic is shielded from the global scope by a function wrapper (usually self-invoking) which returns an object representing the module's public interface. By immediately invoking the function and assigning the result to a namespace variable, we lock up the module's API in the namespace. Additionally any variables not included in the return value will remain forever private, visible only to the public functions that reference them. Like the object literal example above, the receiving namespace can be easily switched, but there are added advantages: object literal notation is rigid – it's all about property assignments, with no room for supporting logic. Moreover all properties must be initialized and property values cannot easily cross reference one another (so, for example, internal closures are not possible). The module pattern suffers none of these constraints and gives us the added benefit of privacy.

I was making quinoa the other night and my... – Jack Cheng

<http://blog.jackcheng.com/post/2975056197/david-lynch-quinoa>

David Lynch Quinoa Yield: 1 bowl Cooking Time: 17 minutes Ingredients: 1/2 cup quinoa 1 1/2 cups organic broccoli (chilled, from bag) 1 cube vegetable bullion Braggs Liquid Aminos Extra virgin olive oil Sea salt Preparation: Fill medium saucépan with about an inch of fresh water. Set pan on stove, light a nice hot flame add several dashes of sea salt. Look at the quinoa. It's like sand, this quinoa. It's real real tight little grains, but it's going to puff up. Unwrap bullion cube, bust it up with a small knife, and let it wait there. It'll be happy waiting right there. When water comes to a boil, add quinoa and cover pan with lid. Reduce heat and simmer for 8 minutes. Meanwhile, retrieve broccoli from refrigerator and set aside, then fill a fine crystal wine glass—one given to you by Agnes and Maya from Łódź, Poland—with red wine, 'cause this is what you do when you're making quinoa. Go outside, sit, take a smoke and think about all the little quinoas bubbling away in the pan. Add broccoli, cover and let cook for an additional 7 minutes. Meanwhile, go back outside and tell the story about the train with the coal-burning engine that stopped in a barren, dust-filled landscape on a moonless Yugoslavian night in 1965. The story about the frog moths and the small copper coin that became one room-temperature bottle of violet sugar water, six ice-cold Coca-colas, and handfuls and handfuls of silver coins. Turn off heat, add bullion to quinoa and stir with the tip of the small knife you used to bust up the bullion. Scoop quinoa into bowl using a spoon. Drizzle with liquid amino acids and olive oil. Serve and enjoy.

Stay small or go big?

<http://kottke.org/12/11/stay-small-or-go-big>

"You see, they kept it small, just one spot, just a few tables. There'd be a line around the corner by 10 am. You see, they made a choice. Anthony and Gail made a choice to stay on Baronne Street and keep their hands on what they were serving. They cooked, everyday they cooked, until they could cook no more. The other choice is that you can build something big but keep it the way that you wanna keep it. Take those ideas and try to execute them to the highest level. You got a lotta people around you, right? You're the captain of the ship. Or what I should say is that you're the ship. And all these people that look up to you and wanna be around you, they're living in the ship. And they're saying, "Oh, the ship is doing good. Oh, the ship is going to some interesting places. Oh, this ship isn't going down just like all the other fucking ships I've been on." [...] You've got a chance to do your restaurant and to take care of these people. Just do it."

"It may be the oddest tale to emerge from the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina. Armed dolphins, trained by the US military to shoot terrorists and pinpoint spies underwater, may be missing in the Gulf of Mexico. Experts who have studied the US navy's cetacean training exercises claim the 36 mammals could be carrying 'toxic dart' guns.

Divers and surfers risk attack, they claim, from a species considered to be among the planet's smartest. The US navy admits it has been training dolphins for military purposes, but has refused to confirm that any are missing." wat

Mercedes-Benz G-Class - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mercedes-Benz_G-Class

The Mercedes-Benz G-Class or G-Wagen (as it was called from 1979 to 1994), short for Geländewagen (or cross-country vehicle), is a four-wheel drive vehicle / sport utility vehicle (SUV) produced by Steyr-Puch (now Magna Steyr) in Austria for German automaker Mercedes-Benz. The G-wagen is characterized by its boxy styling and body-on-frame construction. It utilizes three fully locking differentials, one of the few vehicles to have such a feature. Despite the introduction of an intended replacement, the unibody crossover SUV Mercedes-Benz GL-Class in 2006, the G-Class is still in production and is the longest produced Mercedes-Benz in Daimler's history, with a span of 32 years.

Are You A Simulation? : 13.7: Cosmos And Culture : NPR

[http://www.npr.org/blogs/13.7/2012/11/20/165528528/
the-reality-of-reality-may-not-be-reality](http://www.npr.org/blogs/13.7/2012/11/20/165528528/the-reality-of-reality-may-not-be-reality)

Back in 2003 Bostrom wrote an article imaginatively titled "Are You Living In A Computer Simulation." Bostrom wanted to consider technologically mature civilizations, which for him meant cultures so advanced they build super-duper computers with fully conscious simulated minds living inside simulated realities. Think The Sims on super-duper steroids. These cultures, Bostrom reasoned, might then create ancestor simulations on their computers, meaning simulations of their own past. With these ideas in mind, Bostrom then made the final leap by considering the truth, or falsehood, of three statements: Almost all civilizations at our level of development become extinct before becoming technologically mature. The fraction of technologically mature civilizations that are interested in creating ancestor simulations is almost zero. You are almost certainly living in a computer simulation. So watch what happens as we run down the truth/falsehood list of these statements. If 1 is true then virtually no civilization becomes super-high tech before dying, which kind of stinks. If 1 is false but 2 is true, then virtually no ancestor simulations should exist. The use of "virtually" is important here because Bostrom's purely philosophical argument relies on probabilities and, in the end, it leads him to a remarkable place. Now let's say statement 1 is false. That would mean there are civilizations reaching heights of technology we can barely imagine today. Then add statement 2 as false. That would mean some of these technologically mature civilizations start creating super-duper simulations of their own past. With statement 1 and statement 2 false the conclusion has to be that there must exist ancestor simulations running out there right now full of simulated ancestor minds. saved via Pocket on November 20, 2012 at 10:27PM

The Quiet Ones - NYTimes.com

http://www.nytimes.com/2012/11/18/opinion/sunday/the-quiet-ones.html?pagewanted=all&_r=2&buffer_share=741e2

In his recent treatise on this subject (its title regrettably unprintable here), the philosopher Aaron James posits that people with this personality type are so infuriating — even when the inconvenience they cause us is negligible — because they refuse to recognize the moral reality of those around them. (James's thesis that this obliviousness correlates to a sense of special entitlement is corroborated by my own observation that the crowd on Amtrak, where airline-level fares act as a de facto class barrier, is generally louder and more inconsiderate than the supposed riffraff on the bus.) It's a pathology that seems increasingly common, I suspect in part because people now spend so much time in the solipsist's paradise of the Internet that they carry its illusion of invisible (and inaudible) omniscience back with them out into the real world.

Chinese Architecture, Old and New - In Focus - The Atlantic

<http://www.theatlantic.com/infocus/2012/11/chinese-architecture-old-and-new/100409/>

The growth of China's massive population has slowed in recent years, but migration to urban areas has increased, with almost half of China's 1.3 billion people living in or near cities. A booming economy, government housing initiatives, infrastructure programs, and private real estate speculation have all driven construction to record levels. New apartment, office, and government buildings regularly rise up over older neighborhoods, and thousands have relocated to modern housing complexes. The blend of old and new Chinese architecture is ever-present in cities and villages, as older buildings are torn down and newer ones built at ever faster rates. The images below show glimpses of Chinese architecture, both traditional and modern, as it appears today.

The Occasional Vegetarian's Roasted Brussels Sprouts, Butternut Squash, and Apple with Candied Walnuts | Serious Eats : Recipes

<http://www.serious eats.com/recipes/2012/01/roasted-brussels-sprouts-butternut-squash-apple-candied-walnuts-recipe.html>

Ingredients For the brussels sprouts: 1 1/2 cups trimmed, halved brussels sprouts 2 cups peeled butternut squash, cut into 1-inch asymmetrical chunks 2 cups (about 1 large) Honeycrisp, Cortland, or Granny Smith apple, cored and cut into 1-inch asymmetrical chunks 1 shallot, cut crosswise into 1/4-inch slices 2 tablespoons olive oil 5 fresh sage leaves Salt and freshly ground black pepper 1/2 tablespoon maple syrup For the walnuts (purchased candied walnuts may be substituted): 6 cups vegetable or canola oil, or as needed for frying 6 ounces walnut halves 2 cups confectioners' sugar Kosher salt Walnut bread, for serving (optional) Procedures 1 For the brussels sprouts: Preheat the oven to 375°F. In a large, shallow baking dish, toss the brussels sprouts, butternut squash, apples, and shallot with the olive oil and sage leaves. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Bake without stirring until the vegetables and apples are wrinkled, slightly brown, and the edges of the squash are beginning to crisp, 45 minutes to 1 hour. Meanwhile, prepare the walnuts. 2 For the walnuts: Place a deep fryer or high-sided saucepan over high heat, and add vegetable or canola oil to come no closer than 3 inches from the top of the pot; when the walnuts are added, the oil will bubble and rise. Heat to 375°F. If using a saucepan, reduce the heat to very low to hold the temperature. 3 In a medium pot over high heat, bring 4 cups of water to a boil. Add the walnuts and boil for 10 seconds. Drain well and immediately toss with the confectioners' sugar. Spread flat on a baking sheet and allow to dry for a few minutes. 4 Have a baking sheet lined with paper towels nearby. Confirm that the temperature of the oil is 375°F, adjusting as needed. Working in batches if necessary, add the walnuts and stir once or twice. Fry until amber-brown, about 30 seconds. Using a wire skimmer or heatproof slotted spoon, remove from the oil and transfer to paper towels. Sprinkle lightly with salt and allow to cool for 5 minutes before handling. May be stored in an airtight container at room temperature for up to 3 days. To serve: Remove the vegetables from the oven, drizzle with maple syrup, and sprinkle with 2 to 3 tablespoons of halved or roughly crumbled walnut pieces. Serve with walnut bread, if desired.

Subcompact Publishing — by Craig Mod

http://craigmod.com/journal/subcompact_publishing/

In product design, the simplest thought exercise is to make additions. It's the easiest way to make an Old Thing feel like a New Thing. The more difficult exercise is to reconsider the product in the context of now. A now which may be very different from the then in which the product was originally conceived. ... I propose Subcompact Publishing tools and editorial ethos begin (but not end) with the following qualities: Small issue sizes (3-7 articles / issue) Small file sizes Digital-aware subscription prices Fluid publishing schedule Scroll (don't paginate) Clear navigation HTML(ish) based Touching the open web ... No pagination is vastly superior to pagination done poorly. ... Take all of our digital publishing nuts and springs, bits and bolts and spread them out on the old table. Climb our ladder and look down and ask yourself: "What can I build for subcompact publishing?"

ECMAScript Language Specification - ECMA-262 Edition 5.1

<http://www.ecma-international.org/ecma-262/5.1/>

This Ecma Standard is based on several originating technologies, the most well known being JavaScript (Netscape) and JScript (Microsoft). The language was invented by Brendan Eich at Netscape and first appeared in that company's Navigator 2.0 browser. It has appeared in all subsequent browsers from Netscape and in all browsers from Microsoft starting with Internet Explorer 3.0. The development of this Standard started in November 1996. The first edition of this Ecma Standard was adopted by the Ecma General Assembly of June 1997. That Ecma Standard was submitted to ISO/IEC JTC 1 for adoption under the fast-track procedure, and approved as international standard ISO/IEC 16262, in April 1998. The Ecma General Assembly of June 1998 approved the second edition of ECMA-262 to keep it fully aligned with ISO/IEC 16262. Changes between the first and the second edition are editorial in nature. The third edition of the Standard introduced powerful regular expressions, better string handling, new control statements, try/catch exception handling, tighter definition of errors, formatting for numeric output and minor changes in anticipation of forthcoming internationalisation facilities and future language growth. The third edition of the ECMAScript standard was adopted by the Ecma General Assembly of December 1999 and published as ISO/IEC 16262:2002 in June 2002. Since publication of the third edition, ECMAScript has achieved massive adoption in conjunction with the World Wide Web where it has become the programming language that is supported by essentially all web browsers. Significant work was done to develop a fourth edition of ECMAScript. Although that work was not completed and not published as the fourth edition of ECMAScript, it informs continuing evolution of the language. The fifth edition of ECMAScript (published as ECMA-262 5th edition) codifies de facto interpretations of the language specification that have become common among browser implementations and adds support for new features that have emerged since the publication of the third edition. Such features include accessor properties, reflective creation and inspection of objects, program control of property attributes, additional array manipulation functions, support for the JSON object encoding format, and a strict mode that provides enhanced error checking and program security. This present edition 5.1 of the ECMAScript Standard is fully aligned with third edition of the international standard ISO/IEC 16262:2011. ECMAScript is a vibrant language and the evolution of the language is not complete. Significant technical enhancement will continue with future editions of this specification. This Ecma Standard has been adopted by the General Assembly of June 2011.

The VICE Albums of the Year 2012 | VICE

http://www.vice.com/en_uk/read/the-vice-albums-of-the-year-2012

The Only Top 50 Albums Of The Year Countdown You'll Ever Need. 50. Someone who's just been signed. 49. Someone who's already been dropped. 48. Rapper who has done things that would make Chris Brown cut off his dick in shame, but because they're not to anyone famous, they still count towards his grizzled street cred with Pitchfork readers who are too scared and confused by WSHH to get their news from source. 47. Whatever Thom Yorke has blessed this year. 46. "Never heard of it." 45. "I've heard of it, but not actually gotten around to hearing it yet." 44. "Worst thing I've ever heard." 43. Kendrick Lamar. 42. Band who mistakenly believed they'd be given a big post-Olympics popularity boost by their very public decision to tell Danny Boyle and his Opening Ceremony to go fuck themselves. 41. Artist whose raw public confession of homosexuality wasn't quite as good as Frank Ocean's because he had the misfortune not to work in a genre that hates gays. 40. Peaking Lights 39. Woman compared to Kate Bush because of key overlaps: 1) being a woman, 2) singing, 3) giving the impression that she has difficulty coping with life. 38. Woman praised in copy for "striking a blow for modern femininity", a blow that so far consists of making mediocre indie-pop about past boyfriends. 37. Mac DeMarco 36. Album that everyone suddenly seems to be talking about like they've been into it for ages, despite the fact that you've never heard anyone other than the Quietus say a damned word about it, and never will again after 31 December. 35 – 31. Five acts who have all slept with someone who has slept with Swim Deep. 30. People voting for Django Django who meant to vote for Alt-J. 29. People voting for Alt-J who meant to vote for Django Django. 28. Act who changed name and moved to Montreal to make deep house two years after changing name and moving to Brooklyn to make witch garage two years after moving to Portland to make Apple advert indie. 27. Band who had the good fortune to be alphabetised in everyone's iTunes immediately after Grimes, leading to crucial "left it running" plays. 26. The much-feted return of a "living legend" who, despite enjoying a good feting, has mainly spent the past few months praying that no one finds out what happened in his Top Of The Pops dressing room in March 1973. 25. A "shadowy" post-dubstep producer, who spends his days cold-calling pensioners on behalf of EDF Energy. 24. Artist whom music journalists have decided to love because their former career as a journalist means that there's still hope for everyone's thwarted and stalled creative ambitions, #GodGetMeOutOfThisWakingNightmare. 23. Something on Not Not Fun that was recorded in a pristine, state of the art studio – in which the band were playing next door in the bogs for that authentic lo-fi sound. 22. Someone who might have been in Odd Future, but trying to deny it now. 21. Canadians making Canadian Music. 20. Toy 19. A bunch of super-smart, snot-nosed, wet behind the balls students whose lyrics seem to infer that they have had sexual intercourse, whereas one listen to the way they sing them confirms that they surely haven't. 18. Album that writer breathlessly describes as having "deconstructed pop", but which simply reflects the fact that said writer doesn't listen to much pop nowadays and is astonished at genre-blending that anyone with a working knowledge of Radio 1 will have long since taken as standard. 17. Beach House 16. Someone who once shared a cab with Kevin Parker. 15. Band who have released an "amazingly arch" record that they'd be mortified to hear described as such, because in fact they were being deadly serious and are just incredibly pretentious. 14. Bob Dylan or Leonard Cohen 13. Fiona Apple or Cat Power 12. Dirty Projectors or David Byrne 11. "Sun-dappled dream-popper" who in truth only ever dreams about killing animals with a spade. 10. The xx or Chromatics 9. Album whose appraisal involved the editor having to do a ctrl+F to make damn sure she'd rooted out every last appearance of the word "shimmering". 8. Space reserved for old black legend being rebooted for modern coffee tables by Richard Russell. 7 – 2. The six highest-ranking albums of the year on Pitchfork that lazy hacks swotted up on to obscure the fact that they basically spent 2012 listening to nothing but real music, i.e. Muse and The Vaccines. 1. Album Of The Year:

DECEMBER

Land Art for the Internet - booktwo.org

<http://booktwo.org/notebook/land-art-for-the-internet/>

The ideas around the New Aesthetic grew in part out of a dissatisfaction with the cultural dominance of retro and vintage. I've spent plenty of time articulating the cognitive dissonances of electronic books: this is what is happening to everything. The cognitive dissonance of time, what some people have called atemporality, which appears as hauntology, and which I sometimes prefer to think of as simultaneity or network realism. Atemporality is not an aesthetic, it's the affect of this condition. Everything constructed, building towards this point. Everything undermined, ready to pull it all down as soon as the moment is upon us. Like those old Quaker meeting houses with the single point, the central pin, which when removed would collapse the house and thus remove the grounds for prosecution under unlawful assembly acts. Or the business of setting up meeting houses at a crossroad, so the congregation could call from window to window, hold a service in common without violating the same laws.

Impersonating the Machine - booktwo.org

<http://booktwo.org/notebook/impersonating-the-machine/>

Each of these things is a result of tool use rather than collaboration, of unequal power relationships, of attempting to articulate an efficiency in the network. It's an attempt to freeze the system, to declare it complete and contained, an automaton, but this is anti-network, and the paucity of its thinking is revealed by the network. The failure takes many forms, but it's a contextual failure. You have to include the demon in the system, you have to include the man in the box. The New Aesthetic has been repeatedly and roundly criticised for not stating itself clearly in a way that old frameworks, artistic and academic, may get their heads around; but also for romanticising "robots", a fundamental misunderstanding of the difference between reifying the machine and attributing agency to the machine as paranoiac-critical method, as spatial analysis. There is no romanticisation here. Of course the gaze of the machine is our gaze too: this is what a literacy of the network attempts to articulate, this is what we are attempting to point at — from the inside. saved via Pocket on December 04, 2012 at 04:10PM

Overview effect - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Overview_effect

The Overview Effect is a cognitive shift in awareness reported by some astronauts and cosmonauts during spaceflight, often while viewing the Earth from orbit or from the lunar surface. Third-hand observers of these individuals may also report a noticeable difference in attitude. Astronauts Rusty Schweikart, Edgar Mitchell, Tom Jones and Mike Massimino are all reported to have experienced the effect.

The Thomas Pynchon Fake Book

<http://thomaspynchonfakebook.org/>

Thomas Pynchon is one of the great unheard lyricists. His award-winning novel, Gravity's Rainbow, is stuffed full of song lyrics. Depending on how you count, there are around 100 in the book. Over the course of a year, the Thomas Pynchon Fake Book managed to set twenty-eight of them to music. A limited run CD the group put out also featured two bonus instrumentals inspired by the work, "The White Visitation" and "The Lonely Rocketman." The project doubled as an experiment in online music collaboration. Thirty seven people across four states contributed tracks. In June of 2009 the group held a CD release party in Portland, OR.

Mari Lwyd - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mari_Lwyd

The Mari Lwyd consists of a mare's skull (sometimes made of wood, or when the custom is followed by children, cardboard) fixed to the end of a wooden pole; a white sheet is fastened to the back of the skull, concealing the pole and the person carrying the Mari. Two black cloth ears may be sewn onto the cloth. The eye sockets are often filled with green bottle-ends, or other coloured material. The lower jaw is sometimes spring-loaded, so that the Mari's 'operator' can snap it at passers-by or householders. Coloured ribbons are usually fixed to the skull and small bells attached to the reins (if any) by which the Mari is led. booktwo.org

<http://booktwo.org/notebook/starbooks-death-of-the-work/>

We are now ready to declare the death of the work.
*books are symptomatic of this death: not of the author, but of the work—of the singular, whole, completed, standalone work. They are hybrid, unformed, inconclusive—inconclusive not in the sense of vague, but their conclusions are not located exclusively within the work, but are distributed across the network. Books that do work. These are working books in the sense of working definitions: they are arguing towards something, although that something is inconclusive by the above definition. (“Working definition” is related to the “overlapping consensus”.) [...] I used to talk about how Pynchon and Illuminatus and Grant Morrison’s “Invisibles” rewired my brain, but the internet is the greatest work of literature I’ve ever read. It’s my favourite book. A combinatory literature, the literature of the digital dérive, the literature of the wikihole. Hyper-referentiality is the new style... saved via Pocket on December 06, 2012 at 11:11AM

Making a Private Gist Public - Chris Dzombak

<http://chris.dzombak.name/blog/2011/05/making-private-gist-public>

Copy the Private Clone URL from the Gist's page and clone the Gist to a temporary directory: ~ $ git clone git@gist.github.com:PRIVATEGIST.git gist-private-temp ~ $ cd gist-private-temp From the Gist Web interface, create a new public Gist. You will need to add some dummy text to a file in the Gist since you can't create a totally empty Gist. This file will be deleted in the next step, though. Copy the Private Clone URL from this new repo. Add the public Gist as a remote in your cloned copy of the private Gist, and push to it. (You'll need to do a forced push since the public Gist has the dummy file in it.) ~/gist-private-temp/ $ git remote add public git@gist.github.com:PUBLICGIST.git ~/gist-private-temp/ $ git push -f public Finally, to get the new Gist content to appear on your Gist home page, go to the Gist's page, edit it, and resave it (without making any changes).

The Long Ships - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The_Long_Ships

The Long Ships or Red Orm (original Swedish: Röde Orm) is an adventure novel by the Swedish writer Frans G. Bengtsson. The narrative is set in the late 10th century and follows the adventures of Orm ("serpent"), called "Red" for his hair and his temper, a native of Scania. The book portrays the political situation of Europe in the later Viking Age, Andalusia under Al-Mansur Ibn Abi Aamir, Denmark under Harold Bluetooth, followed by the struggle between Eric the Victorious and Sweyn Forkbeard, Ireland under Brian Boru, England under Ethelred the Unready, and the Battle of Maldon, all before the backdrop of the gradual Christianisation of Scandinavia, contrasting the pragmatic Norse pagan outlook with the exclusiveness of Islam and Christianity. The novel is divided into two parts, published in 1941 and 1945, with two books each.

Mac OS X bootable backup drive with rsync – Nicolas Gallagher

<http://nicolasgallagher.com/mac-osx-bootable-backup-drive-with-rsync/>
I've started using a backup strategy based on that originally described by Jamie Zawinski and subsequently covered in Jeff Atwood's What's your backup strategy? article. It works by incrementally backing up your data to a bootable clone of your computer's internal drive, in order to replace the internal drive when it fails.

The best place to begin is 2001's game-changing live 3-turntable mix, Gold Teeth Thief. This influenced A LOT of people & opened many ears; over a decade later, the world sounds a lot more like I was hearing/blending it back then. Here's a list of most of my mixes in chronological order for free download as V0 mp3s. (Hit Discogs for tracklists.) Why JavaScript Still Sucks - Alexei Boronine

<http://boronine.com/2012/12/14/Why-JavaScript-Still-Sucks/>

"Stop defending JavaScript as a language and start embracing JavaScript as a platform, and as a compilation target." ... The JavaScript community is too quick to dismiss syntax sugar. I think syntax sugar creates expressiveness. The same way you abstract repeating logic in your code, your language ought to abstract common idioms. 1. It makes the code more concise. 2. It helps communicate the meaning behind your code rather than the algorithm. I already know the array iteration algorithm, thank you very much. Stop repeating it and just tell me what you are trying to do. ... JavaScript's object model is not enough. Prototypal inheritance is a low level feature that can be used to create a meaningful object model, but in no way constitutes one by itself."

No Dads, No Filters | booktwo.org

<http://booktwo.org/notebook/no-dads-no-filters/>

"I remember when I used to read books. I remember when I used to listen to albums in their entirety, when I used to watch films from beginning to end. I remember when I used to try to improve myself as a human being. Then Steve Jobs invented the Internet and ruined everything for everybody." -- Lukid ... What this returns me to—the perceived, spam-like qualities of these niche, networked literatures, the echoes and re-echoes of a network-mediated music—is tools and tool-making, but a cyborg tool-making, a tight binding. Marshall Macluhan wrote "We shape our tools and thereafter our tools shape us", but he wrote it in 1964. The tools have evolved and we have co-evolved with them, each acting upon the other. As the distance between us and the network decreases, the tool-making iterates in a constant back-and-forth, ever closer, ever tighter. "I'm sure Jimi Hendrix had a very intimate relationship with his guitar, but it's also very different when the instrument you use is the same that you Skype your mom on, and get really good or bad news on – it's just such an intimate, integrated part of your lifestyle in a way that I don't think has ever been possible before, and so if that could somehow be communicated, I think it would be really interesting. I'm trying to explore that now, to get at the crux of the intimacy we have with our technology, because so many people really cast it in this light of the laptop being cold. I really think it's a fallacy the way people cast technology in this light and then cast acoustic or even analogue instruments in this warm, human light, because I don't understand what would be more human between a block of wood and something that was also created by humans, for humans." -- Holly Herndon

Network criticism | booktwo.org

<http://booktwo.org/notebook/network-criticism/>

The internet is not a medium. This is the fundamental issue at the heart of the artworld's grappling with digital / net art, it's the issue at the heart of our conceptual problems with ebooks, it's the fundamental basis for thinking about the New Aesthetic. The post-internet crowd know this: this is what post-internet means.

Because we've been treating the internet as a medium like photography or sculpture or painting. The internet is not a medium: it is a context. ... What this is, what the New Aesthetic is, is an attempt to do what I have been thinking of as long-form writing online; that is, writing with the same range of argument and continuity of thought as book writing, but inhabiting the network, natural to it and fluent in it. Writing with a disposition, just as Dronestagram has a disposition, that is shaped as information, mobile and replicable. A literature comfortable with impermanence and fragmentation.

24 ways: Responsive Responsive Design

<http://24ways.org/2012/responsive-responsive-design/>

The bottom line: performance is a fundamental component of the user experience. Set a performance/budget baseline. Once you have that baseline set, if someone comes along and wants to add a something to the page, they have to make sure the page remains under budget. If it exceeds the budget, you have three options:
- Optimize an existing feature or asset on the page - Remove an existing feature or asset from the page - Don't add the new feature or asset Be careful with images. JS Before dropping another framework or plugin into a page, we should stop to consider the value it adds and whether we could accomplish what we need to do using a combination of vanilla JavaScript and CSS instead.

DOM Enlightenment - Exploring the relationship between JavaScript and the modern HTML DOM

<http://domenlightenment.com/>

This book is not an exhaustive reference on DOM scripting or JavaScript. It may, however, be the most exhaustive book written about DOM scripting without the use of a library/framework.... What you learn in this book may just make a DOM library unnecessary in ideal situations, say for example, some light DOM scripting for deployment on a Webkit mobile browser only.

"When journalists produce narratives with useful interactive components and explorable data sets, readers get the chance to handle, sort, and manipulate information, instead of reading only a single interpretation. Point-of-view is embedded in data journalism and interactive news apps as much as it is in "traditional" reporting, but multiplicity and polyphony are harder to exclude when you offer full access to data and let readers play with math and scenarios themselves."

Methuselah (tree) - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Methuselah_\(tree\))

Methuselah is a Great Basin Bristlecone Pine (Pinus longaeva) tree growing high in the White Mountains of Inyo County in eastern California. Its age of around 4844–4845 years makes it the world's oldest known living non-clonal organism. The ancient tree is named after Methuselah, a Biblical figure having the longest mentioned lifespan in the Bible of 969 years.

Pando (tree) - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Pando_\(tree\))

Pando (Latin for "I spread"), also known as The Trembling Giant, is a clonal colony of a single male Quaking Aspen (Populus tremuloides) determined to be a single living organism by identical genetic markers and one massive underground root system. The plant is estimated to weigh collectively 6,000,000 kg (6,600 short tons), making it the heaviest known organism. The root system of Pando, at an estimated 80,000 years old, is among the oldest known living organisms. Pando is located in the Fishlake National Forest, near Fish Lake at the western edge of the Colorado Plateau in South-central Utah. ... During intense fires, the organism survived underground, with its root system sending up new stems in the aftermath of each wildfire. If its postulated age is correct, the climate into which Pando was born was markedly different from that of today, and it may be as many as 10,000 years since Pando's last successful flowering.

Old Tjikko - Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Old_Tjikko

Old Tjikko is a 9,550 year old Norway Spruce tree, located on Fulufjället Mountain of Dalarna province in Sweden. Old Tjikko is the world's oldest living individual clonal tree. ... Old Tjikko is estimated to be at least 9,550 years old, making it the world's oldest known individual vegetatively cloned tree. It stands 5 metres (16 ft) tall and is located on Fulufjället Mountain of Dalarna province in Sweden. For thousands of years, the tree appeared in a stunted shrub formation (also known as a krummholz formation) due to the harsh extremes of the environment in which it lives. During the warming of the last century, the tree has sprouted into a normal tree formation. The man who discovered the tree, Leif Kullman (Professor of Physical Geography at Umeå University), has attributed this growth spurt to global warming, and given the tree its nickname "Old Tjikko" after his late dog.

Cookin' Canuck – Hearty Chicken Stew with Butternut Squash & Quinoa Recipe

<http://www.cookincanuck.com/2011/11/hearty-chicken-stew-with-butternut-squash-quinoa-recipe/>

Ingredients 1 1/2 lb. butternut squash, peeled, seeded & chopped into 1/2-inch pieces 3 1/2 cups chicken broth 1 1/2 lb. boneless, skinless chicken thighs 1 tbsp olive oil 1 medium yellow onion, finely chopped 1/2 tsp kosher salt 4 cloves garlic, minced 1 1/2 tsp dried oregano 1 can (14 oz) petite diced tomatoes 2/3 cup uncooked quinoa 3/4 cup pitted and quartered kalamata olives Freshly ground black pepper, to taste 1/4 cup minced fresh flat-leaf parsley Instructions Steam the butternut squash until barely tender, about 10 minutes. Remove half of the squash pieces and set aside. Steam the remaining squash until very tender, an additional 4 to 6 minutes. Mash this squash with the back of a fork. Set aside. In a large saucepan set over medium-high heat, bring the chicken broth to a simmer. Add chicken thighs, cover, and cook until chicken is cooked through, about 15 minutes. Transfer the chicken thighs to a plate and allow to cool. Pour broth into a medium-sized bowl. Return the saucepan to the stovetop and lower heat to medium. Add olive oil. Add onion and cook, stirring occasionally, until onion is starting to turn brown, 8 to 10 minutes. Add minced garlic and oregano. Cook, stirring, for 1 additional minute. To the saucepan, add tomatoes, butternut squash pieces, mashed butternut squash. Stir to combine. Stir in reserved chicken broth and quinoa. Bring to a simmer, cover and cook until the quinoa turns translucent, about 15 minutes. Shred the chicken with your fingers or a fork. Stir the chicken, olives and pepper into the stew and simmer, uncovered, to heat, about 5 minutes. Stir in parsley and serve.

Upside Down Potato & Onion Tart

<http://hizzoners.com/recipes/vegetables/285-upside-down-potato-a-onion-tart>

Ingredients 2 1/2 tablespoons butter 12 sprigs thyme, strip the leaves from the stems 1 large onion, sliced somewhat thickly (a tad more than 1/4 inch thick) 1 lb. waxy red potatoes, washed and very thinly sliced 2 tablespoons olive oil 1/2 cup grated gruyère 1/2 cup crumbled feta 1 cup grated mozzarella sea salt and cracked black pepper Preheat oven to 400°. Melt the butter in a 9-10 inch ovenproof frying pan (cast iron is great) over medium heat. Add the thyme and onion and cook for 5 minutes. Place the potato, oil, cheeses, salt and pepper in a bowl and toss to combine. Top the onion with the potato mixture and bake for 45 minutes or until golden brown and cooked through. Turn upside down to serve.
